3 PRIVATE BIRDING SAFARI'S

Birding is at its peak during the 'emerald' or wet season, (November to April) when Palearctic and intra-African migrants join the resident species. Dense foliage and abundant insects create ideal breeding conditions, with birds displaying vibrant plumage for spectacular viewing. However, heavy rains may limit access to certain areas. Many lodges close during this period, but for those that remain open, it's off-season and typically the most affordable time to visit.
